Energy Institute Seeks New Director

July 24, 2006

A nationwide search is officially underway to fill the position of Director at The Energy Institute. Among the successful candidate's main responsibilities will be promoting existing and emerging areas of energy-related research, as well fostering multidisciplinary and collaborative research at the Institute.

A Search Committee has already begun its work in earnest and is entertaining nominations, applications and enquiries. The Committee Chair, Prof. Michael Adewumi said, " We are seeking a national leader and an outstanding scholar in energy and related fields, who can continue the tradition of excellence for which the Energy Institute is well known for. We are very optimistic about the outcome of the search process."
